

case study

WAXIE Cleans Up Their Inventory Process with Unitech MS926

Industry

Sanitary / Merchant Supply

Application

Order Picking & Light
Warehousing

Product

MS926 Companion Scanner

Customer Profile

In 1945, WAXIE Sanitary Supply started humbly with two brothers; Harry and Morris Wax, selling and delivering sanitary and janitorial supplies to local companies in San Diego, California. Today, WAXIE is still family-owned and has grown to over 800 employees with distribution facilities all over the United States.

Challenge

The cleaning supplies giant wanted a more efficient way to enter customer orders into their specialized system. They were recording orders by hand and found it difficult to work with speed and accuracy. They wanted a wireless barcode scanner to eliminate human error and increase productivity.

Solution

Unitech's US headquarters are located in Cypress, California which is just a county away from WAXIE's main headquarters in San Diego. This was a huge plus for the supplier as service and support is just a phone call or short drive away. A Unitech sale rep issued a quote for our MS926 companion scanner and drove to their San Diego office the next day. The purchase order for the scanners was signed in the first meeting.

The MS926 is a slim, handheld device that pairs to a computer, tablet, or smart phone via Bluetooth. It scans all 1D and 2D barcodes and offers a full-shift battery life from a single charge.

The cleaning goods supplier liked the ability to scan barcodes in the warehouse then batch upload to computers in the office for simple data collection. WAXIE loved the small form factor and competitive price of the MS926 as well as the ease of use and ease of doing business with Unitech.

MS926 Companion Scanner